CONTENTS

The retention and disposition periods governing the records series listed herein are hereby approved. In accordance with the provisions of Chapters 121 and 132 of the General Statutes of North Carolina, it is agreed that the records of the

do not and will not have further use or value for official business, research, or reference purposes after the respective retention periods specified herein and are authorized to be destroyed or otherwise disposed of by the office or official having custody of them without further reference to or approval of either party to this agreement. The University agrees to comply with 07 NCAC 04M .0510 when deciding on a method of destruction. Confidential records will be destroyed in such a manner that the records cannot be practicably read or reconstructed. However, records subject to audit or those legally required for ongoing official proceedings must be retained until released from such audits or official proceedings, notwithstanding the instructions of this schedule. Public records, including electronic records, not listed in this schedule are not authorized to be destroyed.

The UNC System and the Department of Natural and Cultural Resources agree that certain records series possess only brief administrative, fiscal, legal, research, and reference value. These records series have been designated by retention periods that allow these records to be destroyed when "reference value ends." The University hereby agrees that it will establish and enforce internal policies setting minimum retention periods for the records that Natural and Cultural Resources has scheduled with the disposition instruction "destroy when reference value ends." If a University does not establish internal policies and retention periods, the University is not complying with the provisions of this retention schedule and is not authorized by the Department of Natural and Cultural Resources to destroy the records with the disposition instruction "destroy when reference value ends."

The UNC System and the Department of Natural and Cultural Resources concur that the long-term and/or permanent preservation of electronic records requires additional commitment and active management by the agency. The University agrees to comply with all policies, standards, and best practices published by the Department of Natural and Cultural Resources regarding the creation and management of electronic records.

It is further agreed that these records may not be destroyed prior to the time periods stated; however, for sufficient reason they may be retained for longer periods. This schedule is to remain in effect from the date of approval until it is reviewed and updated.

Executive Summary

This document, known as the University General Schedule, is a tool for the staff and faculty of the institutions in the University of North Carolina (UNC) System to use when managing the records in their offices. This schedule serves as the inventory and schedule that the Department of Natural and Cultural Resources (DNCR) is directed to provide by G.S. § 121-5(c) and G.S. § 132-8. It lists records commonly found in University offices and gives an assessment of their value by indicating when (and if) those records should be destroyed. The University Archivist is authorized to retain any record deemed to have historical value.

This schedule is an agreement between the UNC System and the Department of Natural and Cultural Resources. It supersedes all previous editions, including the University General Schedule issued in 2007. Your University may also have specific schedules for your campus; this University General Schedule does not supersede those schedules without specific authorization by your Chancellor, University Counsel, University Archivist, or University Records Officer.

According to G.S. § 121-5 and G.S. § 132-3, you may only destroy public records with the consent of the Department of Natural and Cultural Resources. This schedule (along with any campus-specific schedules) is the primary way DNCR provides its consent. Records, regardless of medium, not listed on this schedule or a campus-specific schedule may not be destroyed without the consent of DNCR and your University Records Officer or Archivist.

If you have records in your office that are not on this University General Schedule or on a campusspecific schedule, please contact your University Records Officer or Archivist. If in concert you determine the records have historical value, they should be transferred to the University Archives. If these are records still actively being created and received, please complete the form found in the appendix to this schedule, Request for Change in University Records Schedule, and submit it to the records analyst in the Government Records Section assigned to the UNC system. In these are inactive records, please complete the form found in the appendix to this schedule, Request for Disposal of Unscheduled Records, and submit it to the records analyst in the Government Records Section assigned to the UNC system.

Public Records and Requests

According to G.S. § 132-1(a):

"Public record" or "public records" shall mean all documents, papers, letters, maps, books, photographs, films, sound recordings, magnetic or other tapes, electronic data-processing records, artifacts, or other documentary material, regardless of physical form or characteristics, made or received pursuant to law or ordinance in connection with the transaction of public business by any agency of North Carolina government or its subdivisions.

G.S. § 132-1(b) goes on to specify:

The public records and public information compiled by the agencies of North Carolina government or its subdivisions are the property of the people. Therefore, it is the policy of this State that the people may obtain copies of their public records and public information free or at minimal cost unless otherwise specifically provided by law.

And G.S. § 132-6(a) further elaborates on the openness of public records:

Every custodian of public records shall permit any record in the custodian's custody to be inspected and examined at reasonable times and under reasonable supervision by any person, and shall, as promptly as possible, furnish copies thereof upon payment of any fees as may be prescribed by law. As used herein, "custodian" does not mean an agency that holds the public records of other agencies solely for purposes of storage or safekeeping or solely to provide data processing.

The implication of this last sentence is that if a university contracts with any outside vendor for file storage, it is still the responsibility of the records-creating agency to be able to produce required documents necessary to answer a public records request (or an audit or discovery for litigation). For this reason, be sure that all electronic records contracts include language that addresses the procedures for exporting records should a contractor go out of business or should the agency decide to transfer the contract to another vendor.

Similarly, if a university contracts with outside providers for any services, those providers must be made aware of their legal obligations for maintaining public records in accordance with this University General Schedule. In addition, any confidentiality requirements established for particular records apply to contractors and providers in the same manner they apply to universities themselves.

Confidentiality

As indicated above, North Carolina has a fairly broad definition of public records. However, not all of these public records are open to public inspection. G.S. § 132-1.1 through G.S. § 132-1.23 list numerous records that are exempt from disclosure, and there are additional places in the General Statutes of North Carolina as well as in the federal code that confer confidentiality on records. Be aware, according to G.S. § 132-6(c):

No request to inspect, examine, or obtain copies of public records shall be denied on the grounds that confidential information is commingled with the requested nonconfidential information. If it is necessary to separate confidential from nonconfidential information in order to permit the inspection, examination, or copying of the public records, the public agency shall bear the cost of such separation...

Any records that are considered confidential are identified with a ¹ in the Series column and a specific citation in the rightmost column. No claim of confidentiality can be made without specific regard to a state or federal authority. However, be aware that the presence of such a citation does not necessarily indicate that all records within that series are entirely confidential. If there are questions, verify with university legal counsel or public information officer.

Audits, Litigation, and Other Official Actions

A legal hold or litigation hold means that records that are the subject of the legal hold or litigation hold must be preserved and thus must not be destroyed until officially released from the hold. A legal hold or litigation hold is placed when either an official discovery order is served on the agency requesting the production of the records in question (for a litigation, regulatory investigation, audit, open records request, etc.) or litigation is pending and the university is thus on notice to preserve all potentially relevant records. You must also ensure that for a claim or litigation that appears to be reasonably foreseeable or anticipated but not yet initiated, any records (in paper or electronic formats) relevant to such a claim or litigation are preserved and not destroyed until released by your General Counsel. The records in question must not be destroyed until the completion of the action and the resolution of all issues that arise from it regardless of the retention period set forth in this schedule.

We have used an asterisk (*) in the disposition instructions to mark records series that are commonly audited, litigated, or may be subject to other official actions. However, any record has this potential. Records custodians are responsible for being aware of potential actions and for preventing the destruction of any record that is, or may be reasonably expected to become, involved in an audit, legal, or other official action.

Records used during routine audits may be destroyed when the governing body accepts the audit, if the records have completed the retention period listed in this schedule. If time remains in the retention period, the records must be maintained for the remainder of the period. The auditor's working papers must be kept according to the schedule. (See AUDIT RECORDS, page 2, item 1.5.) Should a dispute arise over an audit, the records that were audited should be retained until that dispute is resolved.

The attorney representing the University should inform records custodians when legal matters are concluded and records will no longer be needed. Following the conclusion of any legal action, the records may be destroyed if they have met the retention period in the schedule. Otherwise, they should be kept for the remaining time period.

Transitory Records

Transitory records are defined as "record[s] that [have] little or no documentary or evidential value and that need not be set aside for future use."¹ North Carolina has a broad definition of public records. However, the Department of Natural and Cultural Resources recognizes that some records may have little or no long-term documentary or evidential value to the creating agency. These records are often called "transitory records." They may be disposed of according to the guidance below. However, all public employees should be familiar with the University General Schedule and any other applicable guidelines for their office. If there is a required retention period for these records, that requirement must be followed. When in doubt about whether a record is transitory or whether it has special significance or importance, retain the record in question and seek guidance from the analyst assigned to your agency.

Routing slips and transmittal sheets adding no information to that contained in the transmitted material have minimal value after the material has been successfully transmitted. These records may be destroyed or otherwise disposed of after receipt of the material has been confirmed. Similarly, "while you were out" slips, memory aids, and other records requesting follow-up actions (including voicemails and calendar invites) have minimal value once the official action these records are supporting has been completed and documented. These records may be destroyed or otherwise disposed of once the action has been resolved.

Drafts and working papers, including notes and calculations, are materials gathered or created to assist in the creation of another record. All drafts and working papers are public records subject to all provisions of General Statute § 132, but many of them have minimal value after the final version of the record has been approved, and may be destroyed after final approval, if they are no longer necessary to support the analysis or conclusions of the official record. Drafts and working documents that may be destroyed after final approval include:

- Drafts and working papers for internal administrative reports, such as daily and monthly activity reports
- Drafts and working papers for internal, non-policy-level documents, such as informal workflows and manuals; and
- Drafts and working papers for presentations, workshops, and other explanations of agency policy that is already formally documented.

Forms used solely to create, update, or modify records in an electronic medium may be destroyed in office after completion of data entry and after all verification and quality control procedures, so long as these records are not required for audit or legal purposes. However, if the forms contain any analog components that are necessary to validate the information contained on them (e.g., a signature or notary's seal), they should be retained according to the disposition instructions for the records series encompassing the forms' function.

Schedule Format

This University General Schedule applies to records in all media, unless otherwise specified. If your office has records that are designated to transfer to the University Archives, please contact the University Archivist to discuss the format in which these records will transfer.

- symbol designating that records in this series may be confidential or may include confidential information

Record Series – groupings of records that are "created, received, or used in the same activity."²

Description – a description of the records, often including the types of records that can be frequently found in that series.

Disposition Instructions – instructions dictating the length of time a series must be retained, and how the office should dispose of those records after that time (either by destruction or transfer to the State Archives). For any records that will transfer to the State Records Center, either for temporary storage or for transfer to the State Archives, consult the Appendix for the item number that is necessary to track these records.

Citation – a listing of references to statutes, laws, and codes related to the records series. Citations can include Authorities (governing the creation of records), Confidentiality (limiting access to public records), and Retention (setting a retention period).

- CFR = citation from the Code of Federal Regulations
- G.S. = citation from the North Carolina General Statutes
- USC = citation from the United States Code

Note: No destruction of records may take place if litigation or audits are pending or reasonably anticipated.

This schedule applies to all records regardless of format (unless otherwise specified).

STANDARD 12: STUDENT ACADEMIC AND CURRICULUM AND INSTRUCTION RECORDS

Official records created and accumulated regarding the creation and provision of courses along with student academic progress at the University. Comply with relevant provisions of the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (FERPA) regarding the confidentiality of student records.

While students are enrolled at the University, campus schools and departments likely accumulate copies of elements of the student academic record (e.g., applications, test results, registration materials, major/minor declarations, etc.). The office of record (usually the Office of the University Registrar) is responsible for abiding by the mandated disposition instructions; other copies are reference copies that may be discarded when their reference value ends.

See also: Coursework and participant records for continuing education, extension, summer programs, and other non-academic courses that do not grant course credits are under Conferences, Training Programs, Lectures, and Workshops (page 4, item 1.11).

Appendix

Destructions

General Statute § 121-5 authorizes DNCR to regulate the destruction of public records, codified in the North Carolina Administrative Code, Title 7, Chapter 4, Subchapter M, Section .0510:

(a) Paper records which have met their required retention requirements and are not subject to legal or other audit holds should be destroyed in one of the following ways:

• burned, unless prohibited by local ordinance

• shredded, or torn up so as to destroy the record content of the documents or material concerned

• placed in acid vats so as to reduce the paper to pulp and to terminate the existence of the documents or materials concerned

• sold as waste paper, provided that the purchaser agrees in writing that the documents or materials concerned will not be resold without pulverizing or shredding the documents so that the information contained within cannot be practicably read or reconstructed.

(b) Electronic records should be destroyed in this way:

• the data and metadata are to be overwritten, deleted, and unlinked so the data and metadata may not be practicably reconstructed.

(c) Confidential records and records containing confidential information, whether paper or electronic, should be destroyed in this way:

• the data, metadata, and physical media are to be destroyed in such a manner that the information cannot be read or reconstructed under any means.

DNCR recommends that you report on an annual basis to your University Records Officer or Archivist about your records destruction activities. A sample destructions log is available on the state agency records management documents page at https://archives.ncdcr.gov/documents/state-agency-rm.

Public records, including electronic records, not listed on a functional schedule are not authorized to be destroyed.

Disaster Preparation and Recovery

We can provide training on disaster preparation. We discuss the roles of proper inventories, staff training, and advance contract with recovery vendors. If you would like to have this workshop presented, contact the records analyst assigned to the UNC system.

In case of fire or flood, secure the area and keep everyone out until fire or other safety professionals allow entry. DO NOT ATTEMPT TO MOVE OR CLEAN ANY RECORDS. Damaged records are extremely fragile and require careful handling. Call your university records officer and the State Archives of North Carolina. Our staff is trained in preliminary recovery techniques, and professional vendors can handle larger disasters. You may contact our Raleigh office at (919) 814-6900 or our Asheville office at (828) 296-7230.

Electronic Records

Universities should consider retention requirements and disposition authorities when designing and implementing electronic records management systems. Any type of electronically-created or electronically-stored information falls under the North Carolina General Assembly's definition of public records cited above. For example, e-mail, text messages, blog posts, voicemails, websites, word processing documents, spreadsheets, databases, and PDFs all fall within this definition of public records. In addition, G.S. § 132-6.1(a) specifies:

After June 30, 1996, no public agency shall purchase, lease, create, or otherwise acquire any electronic data-processing system for the storage, manipulation, or retrieval of public records unless it first determines that the system will not impair or impede the agency's ability to permit the public inspection and examination, and to provide electronic copies of such records.

Universities may scan any paper record and retain it electronically for ease of retrieval. If an office wishes to destroy the original paper records before their assigned retention periods have been met, the unit must establish an electronic records policy, including putting into place internal procedures for quality assurance and documentation of authorization for records destructions. Forms and templates to guide these processes can be found on the higher education records management documents page at https://archives.ncdcr.gov/documents/higher-ed-rm, and best practices for file naming, file formats, and maintaining trustworthy digital public records can be found at https://archives.ncdcr.gov/government/digital-records/digital-records-policies-and-guidelines. This electronic records policy must be approved by the Government Records Section. Universities should be aware that for the purpose of any audit, litigation, or public records request, they are considered the records custodian obligated to produce requested records, even if said records are being maintained electronically by an outside vendor. Therefore, contracts regarding electronically stored information should be carefully negotiated to specify how records can be exported in case a vendor goes out of business or the university decides to award the contract to a different vendor.

Glossary

Historical Value

The term historical value is used interchangeably with archival value. The Society of American Archivists Glossary of Archival and Records Terminology defines it as "the importance or usefulness of records that justifies their continued preservation because of the enduring administrative, legal, fiscal, or evidential information they contain."⁵ Two criteria for determining historical value are inherent interest and extraordinary documentation:

- Inherent interest is created by non-routine events, by the involvement of famous parties, and by compelling contexts. For instance, foreclosure proceedings from the 1930s have high historical value because they date from the era of the Great Depression.
- Extraordinary documentation is found in records that shed light on political, public, or social history. For instance, the records from the replevin case that returned the Bill of Rights to North Carolina hold more historical value than most property case files because of the political history intertwined with this case.

Records with enduring historical value should be transferred in accordance with the disposition requirement of this University General Schedule to your University Archives. If your institution does not have an Archives, contact your university records officer of the University Library. If no other space is available, the records must be maintained permanently in the office that created the records or in a storage space that is controlled for temperature and humidity, free of pests and insects, and secure from unauthorized entry.

Record Copy

A record copy is defined as "the single copy of a document, often the original, that is designated as the official copy for reference and preservation."⁶ The record copy is the one whose retention and disposition is mandated by these functional schedules; all additional copies are considered reference or access copies and can be destroyed when their usefulness expires. In some cases, postings to social media may be unofficial copies of information that is captured elsewhere as a record copy (e.g., a press release about an upcoming agency event that is copied to various social media platforms). Appropriately retaining record copies and disposing of reference copies requires agencies to designate clearly what position or office is required to maintain an official record for the duration of its designated retention period. To facilitate this process, SANC has provided a sample file plan for agency use (available on the state agency records management page at https://archives.ncdcr.gov/documents/state-agency-rm). In identified cases where records overlap between state agencies, SANC has specified on the schedules which agency is considered the record owner.

Record Custody

The agency that creates or receives a record is the legal custodian of that record and responsibility for fulfilling any retention requirements and public records requests. If an agency transfers records to the State Records Center for temporary storage prior to destruction, those records remain in the legal custody of the originating agency. Any records requests must be authorized by the originating agency, and ultimate destruction must also be authorized by that agency. If an agency transfers archival records to the State Records Center, once those records have been accessioned by the State Archives, their legal custody transfers to the State Archives. From that point forward, all records requests should be channeled through the State Archives. In a few instances, records transfer to the State Records Center to be held in permanent security storage (indicated by a © on the functional schedule); in these cases, the records remain in the legal custody of the originating agency.

Reference Value

The disposition instruction to destroy in office when reference value ends is usually applied to records that were not created by the recipient. Reference files include materials that have no regulatory authority for the recipient and are received from outside the agency or from other units within the agency; subject files containing informational copies of records organized by areas of interest; and reference copies of records where another individual or agency is responsible for maintaining the record copy. The agency is given the discretion to determine how long these records should be retained before destruction, and this decision should be documented in a file plan or other policy so that all members of the agency can be consistent in their handling of these records.

Authorization to Destroy Paper Records

Before a university office may destroy any paper record that has not met its required retention period and keep only a digital surrogate of that record, all the following conditions must be met:

- □ The office agrees to abide by all guidelines and best practices as published by the Department of Natural and Cultural Resources, including File Format Guidelines and Best Practices for File-Naming.
- □ An electronic records policy has been approved by the office and authorized by the Department of Natural and Cultural Resources.
- □ All records series that will be scanned and their paper records destroyed after quality audits are listed in the table below:

Records Series Title	Inclusive Dates (e.g., 1987-1989; 2005-present ¹)	Required Retention Period

□ Quality control audits have been performed on the electronic records.

□ The digital surrogates will be retained for the entirety of the required retention period.
